Chinatown Need Not be Destroyed.

Present Action Means Ruin to Chinese--Work of Associated Societies -- Food Supplied.

The Chinese merchants bitterly condemn the action of the Board of Health in the present trouble. With the Chinese New Year (January 31st) close upon them, heavy shipments of merchandise rotting on the wharves, freight and duty paid, and business at a complete standstill, their lot is a particularly hard one.

Chinese Consul Yang Wei Pin considers the situation does not warrant such drastic measures. While acknowledging the presence of a disease esembling the plague, he considers the burning of Chinatown and the wholesale quarantine of the district unnecessary and ruinous to the merchants. He considers the Chinese are being discriminated against, and in this regard points to a Chinese store on Queen street in the same block with the Honolulu Iron Works, and also to the block on Nuuanu, between King and Hotel streets. This block is all clean and the class of people occupying it above the average, and he considers he block should be opened.

He thinks the plan followed of keeping the inhabitants shut up in their several blocks a great aid to the promotion of sickness, and says they should be allowed out to get some

The Associated Chinese Society has, u pto date, been supplying several hunired of the inhabitants with two daily meals of meat, rice and vegetables. This work is by contribution of the wealthier Chinese merchants, but they say it cannot go on forever and unless their condition receives some sympathey must close down and leave the matter of providing food with the au-'horitles. He had personally provided 150 sweaters for the use of men at the camps, and also twenty bags of rice for the Chinese in quarantine.

The question of the disposal of hose people released from the Kakaako camps is, in his opinion, one for early settlement by the authorities. At the request of Messrs, Swanzy and Giffard enquiry was made of the cople at Kakaako for the purpose of carping how many had friends to whom they could go. It was found that orty-seven were penniless, friendless and homeless, and the Consul considrs these people should at once reedve attention. Messrs. Chu Gem and Vim Quon of the Associated Chinese Society use similar language.

THE FIRE CHIEF.

His Methods of Handling Fires are Highly Praised.

Chief Hunt of the Fire Department is lemonstrating by his manner of handling the wholesale destruction of buildngs in the infected district that he is thoroughly conversant with modern methods of fire figh ing. His judgment has called forth many complimentary remarks from strangers as well as usiness men who witnessed the big fire yesterday. "It is a more trying test of Chief Hunt and his men to handle a delinerate destruction of property, than to simply drown out the ordinary fire," sald a Coast fireman who is visiting in this city. "The protection of adjoining property is of the greatest importance, and if the plan of procedure in burning block 10 had no been accurately followed by the Chief the city would have suffered great loss. The deas of the Chief, I noticed, were such as would have been put into execution by the pest fire department in the great Lies. Honolulu is fortunate in having a man of Chief Hunt's ability at he head of one of the most important branches of the city government."

New Books at Library.

The librarian of the Honolulu Library and Reading-Room Association reports the following books received since the last printed list: "The Making of Hawaii," by William Fremont Blackman; "Hawaii and Its People," by Alexander S. Twombly; "The War Revenue Law of 1898 Explained," by J. M. Gould and E. H. Savary; "South America," by Hezekiah Butterworth; 'Where Three Empires Meet," by E. F. Knight; "Trooper 3809," by Lionel Decle; "The Story of the Railroad," by Cy Warman; "Parsifal in English Verse," by Alfred Forman; "Miss Cay-ley's Adventures," by Grant Allen; "The Ladder of Fortune," by Frances Courtenay Baylor; "Tales of an Old Courtenay Baylor; "Tales of an Old Chateau," by Marguerite Bouvet; "The White Islander," by Mary Hartwell Catherwood; "Janice Meredith," by Paul Leicester Ford; "The Queen's Twin and Other Stories," by Sarah Orne Jewett; "Loveliness," by Elizaheth Stuart Phelps; "Children of the Mist," by Eden Philipotts; "A Sea Comedy," by Morley Roberts; "The Associated Hermits," by F. R. Stockton; "Mistress Content Cradock," by Anne Eliot Trumbull; "Bonhomme," by Henry Cecil Walsh; "The Greater Inclination," by Edith Wharton.

Unpermitted Goods.

The men on guard duty in Chinatown received a remembrance of the Salvation Army on Monday and Tuesday nights in the shape of refreshments, which were passed in by permission of the officer on duty. On Wednesoay night they were refused, on the ground that nothing was permitted to pass the lines, without special permission of the Board of Health. The men greatly appreciated the act of the Salvation Army people.
